PREAMBLE :

In view of the industrialisation and urbanisation, Social Services like care and shelter of the aged infirm, handicapped, destitute children, working women etc., have cropped up. Formerly the joint family system and other local religious institutions used to take care of the aged infirm handicapped and destitute children ; but, the joint family system is being replaced by nuclear families. It has become the responsibility of the Government to take care of these needy people. There are so many people coming from poor families and there are also a number of adult physically handicapped persons having nobody to look after and they have resorted to begging for their livelihood. Such people required care and shelter and also rehabilitation. The orphan/destitute/neglected children are in need of education facilities, love and affection.

Government have been liberally providing financial assistance to voluntary organisations to run homes for the aged, infirm, destitutes, physically/mentally handicapped, working women etc.

Government have been considering for some time past to provide co-ordinated services to different types of beneficiaries in one block

The Director of Women and Children's Welfare has proposed starting a Social Service Complex as a composite institution providing services for the aged, infirm, physically/mentally handicapped persons above 15 years of age.
